project profile

Tate Britain, London

Value	£ 600,000
Sector	Heritage & Conservation
Main Contractor	Mace

Due to rain penetration a number of the Gallery's main rooms had suffered damage over a number of years.

Jackson's craftsmen carried out a thorough investigation of the existing plasterwork before making replacement sections in many places to marry back into the existing profiles. Also completed within the same works package were areas of polished plasterwork and plasterboard ceilings of the highest quality winning for the Company The Plasterers Trophy for that year.
